Bar Antics

If you like to mingle with local celebrities such as the Renegades or maybe even an Ottawa Senator, then the Inferno bar is the place to be. Bar shows light up the night with the flame breathing antics of bartenders Derek and Jaimie as well as the occasional Champagne Tower.

The Crowd

Inferno's clientele ranges between 23 and 29 years of age. Open six days a week (closed on Mondays), the bar's cover charges run as low as $3.00 and as steep as $10.00, depending on the night. Toronto dance style and climaxing with DJ Kruz's distinctive progressive mix of Latin rhythms, house and dance.

JPWBT

Last but not least, a visit to Inferno would not be complete without trying the famous "JPWBT" - you can ask the bartender for the full name. Available as a shooter or a martini, this surprisingly fruity drink is not what the name suggests!

i can only comment about the time i was there. The decor takes cheesiness to new heights. The "temple" theme looks like it was taken from the set of a high school play. As for the "inferno" fire-theme: mock-flame lamps, probably bought at ikea. The Crowd was poorly dressed and
